Nightmare stories on video

Our nightm are story this week is about Nicholas White, who was stuck in a lift for 41 hours. See the video here.

34 years old Nicholas White was a manager for a business magazine in New York. One Friday night he was working late at the office when he decided to go outside for a quick cigarette. It was the longest cigarette break of his life.

While White was returning to his office on the 43rd floor, the lift suddenly stopped between floors. He calmly pushed the alarm button and waited for an answer. Nothing. He began to get anxious.

He rang it a few more times. Then he pulled the button out, so that the alarm rang and rang continuously. Still no answer. It was 11 p.m. and nobody was working – the building was empty. Now he was frightened. He wasn't wearing a watch.

He had no phone, no food and no water.

White walked round and round the lift like an insect stuck in a box. Sometimes he lay on the floor, with his face down because the light was very bright. He tried to stay calm by thinking about other things. At one point he took out his wallet and read the back of a football match ticket. After some time, he felt angry – very angry. Why wasn't the lift working? Why was nobody answering?! He hit the walls several times and shouted at the video camera. The noise of the alarm was driving him crazy, but he didn't want to turn it off.

As time passed he thought that he was going to die without water. Friday turned to Saturday, and Saturday to Sunday. White was now exhausted. Then, suddenly, at 4 p.m., a voice on the intercom asked, "Is someone in there?"
